INTRODUCTION

// from Max

Before I ever filmed a wedding, I was chasing sunsets across continents, learning how to read light at golden hour, how to find the story in a split second, and how to make a viewer feel a place rather than just see it.

My shift toward weddings happened naturally. I started helping my wife grow her business, Flowerscapes Rentals (flowerscapes.rentals), creating content that showed her floral designs in their best light. Standing in those setups, surrounded by texture, intention, and quiet beauty, I realized weddings were the most emotional version of everything I loved about travel filmmaking: unrepeatable moments, real feeling, and the art of being ready.

01

TRAVEL ROOTS

Years filming across locations trained a sharp instinct for light, movement, and the decisive frame.

02

FLOWERSCAPES ERA

Creating content for a floral rental business built deep fluency in styled scenes, soft aesthetics, and detail work.

03

WEDDING FILM

Now I bring that full background to couples: cinematic storytelling that honors every fleeting second of the day.

> I don't just document your wedding. I look for the frame that makes you remember exactly how it felt, decades from now.

Couples choose me because I move quietly, shoot instinctively, and deliver films that feel like cinema, not a highlight reel. Every wedding is its own story. I'm here to tell yours well.
